LIFELONG LEARNING

BY LISA SWEENEY

Lisa Sweeney, Development Director

My colleagues and I brainstormed the theme for this newsletter as stores were rolling out their back-to-school supplies. Though my own teaching career has come to a close and my daughters are now past school age, there's something about the sight of those sharpened pencils and blank notebooks that still fills me with the sense of possibility. And soon we had identified a number of stories that tapped into that same feeling: tales of lifelong learning.

In these pages, you'll find Frezgi Hiskias (page 5), a longtime nurse here at Our Lady. His incredible story as an Eritrean immigrant brought him back to the very classroom he once sat in as a student at St. Paul College – this time to teach. He was recently given an Outstanding Nurse Award from Mpls.St.Paul Magazine.

You'll read about Eunice Milbrath (page 2), a patient whose 28-year career as a kindergarten teacher in Minneapolis public schools was lauded by district administrators. Eunice took her students on nature walks, taught them poetry and helped them put on puppet shows.

"I believe in play!" she once said. She also believed in lifelong learning, and she took writing classes and piano lessons in her 80s.

The staff at Our Lady of Peace set a high bar when it comes to ongoing education. Two were recently awarded scholarships from the Minnesota Department of Health in order to advance their education (page 14).

Our volunteers are also lifelong learners. Ruth Markowitz (page 7), a skilled St. Paul psychologist, enrolled in an end-of-life program 25 years into her practice in order to deepen her knowledge reserve; our patients and their grieving loved ones are now the beneficiaries.

Meanwhile, Jane Whitlock (page 3) is pioneering a new field as an end-of-life doula, compelled to share hard-won lessons in the wake of her husband's death. Last year Jane gave a widely viewed TEDxMinneapolis talk titled "What I Learned About Life From Death" and began volunteering at Our Lady. Her gentle, intuitive approach here has had a profound impact as our patients near death.

To work in hospice care is to be a student of humanity – to observe, reflect and respond. And that desire to keep learning is propelled by the gift of perspective: that life is short. I hope these stories inspire you to keep an open mind and heart. There is something precious in that combination, when listening and learning give way to loving. It happens here daily.

ENTERPRISING KINDERGARTEN TEACHER DECLAIRED: 'I BELIEVE IN PLAY!'

PATIENT PROFILE

Eunice Lindberg Milbrath packed a wealth of learning into her 94-year life, feeding her creative soul at every turn.

The celebrated kindergarten teacher – also a quilter, a gardener, a pianist and a poet – passed away peacefully July 1 after spending 10 weeks at Our Lady of Peace.

Eunice was inspired to launch a teaching career after raising her first two children and successfully developing a two-hour Sunday school program for kindergarten-aged children at her church, Bethlehem Church in Minneapolis.

She went on to teach kindergarten at Minneapolis public schools for 28 years. Her discovery-based teaching inspired her peers. She fostered her students' sense of wonder. She had learning stations with puzzles, math and science activities, wood blocks, painting, musical instruments, a sandbox, and a doll corner. Her classes wrote poetry together, went on nature walks, and performed plays and circus shows.

"I believe in play!" she proclaimed. "My great joy is to create a rich learning experiential environment, then helping and observing as children make their own discoveries."

She once corresponded with Fred Rogers, who wrote that she was a "creative teacher." He ended the letter by saying: "I feel deeply that we are all working together to help children grow in a healthy way."

Eunice reflected often on her approach in the classroom, and at age 50, she went to England to study innovative teaching methods. "I always, always wanted to be a teacher – not just a teacher but one grounded in the philosophy of why I taught the way I taught," she said. District administrators praised her as an innovative teacher.

That same enterprising spirit made her a wonderful mother. "Mom possessed a creative force that was always with her," her daughter Karen Schoenrock wrote. "Not content with the ordinary, there was always a way to embellish or improve anything. Whether decorating her own home, creating a garden, preparing a special meal including roast goose and lutefisk for Christmas or turning an old cabin into a Swedish stuga, she made it happen."

"My great joy is to create a rich learning experiential environment, then helping and observing as children make their own discoveries."

Eunice Lindberg Milbrath

Eunice and her beloved husband, Elwood, lived near the Mississippi River in south Minneapolis, where she enjoyed hundreds of hours of walking, biking and cross-country skiing. "Mom introduced us to nature and the wilderness through yearly camping trips throughout Minnesota and other states," Karen said. "We had many adventures involving bears, skunks, snakes and other woodland creatures, some of which joined us in our old umbrella tent. She was the instigator of our canoe trips and was fearless even when we got hung up on rocks in the middle of a lake and nearly tipped over."

In her retirement years, Eunice embraced the beauty in her midst, making dried-flower wreaths and beautiful quilts. She never stopped learning; taking writing classes and piano lessons in her 80s.

END-OF-LIFE DOULA PIONEERING SERVICES AT OUR LADY

VOLUNTEER PROFILE

It stems from a humble desire: to do for others what she wishes someone had done for her.

Jane Whitlock was only 47 when her husband, Rob, died from kidney cancer, an experience for which she felt “totally unprepared.”

Looking back, she realizes that she and Rob both could’ve used a companion who knew the ins and outs of the dying process and could provide support every step of the way. Not a doctor, a nurse, a social worker or a minister. Not any kind of expert bound by a schedule or driven by an agenda. Someone who could make them feel seen, heard and understood.

So Whitlock launched a practice and, in doing so, helped pioneer a nascent field: end-of-life doulas. The term doula, Greek for “female servant,” has become widely known for its front-of-life application helping women give birth. But wouldn’t it be just as helpful – perhaps more – to usher people through their final moments? And just as a postpartum doula can make a huge difference to a new mom recovering from labor and tending to a newborn at all hours, couldn’t a death doula provide invaluable help to a disoriented spouse tasked with planning a funeral and returning to work in three days?

The answer is yes.

Whitlock – formerly a social-studies teacher and athletic coach from St. Paul – is now a trained end-of-life doula who volunteers twice a month at Our Lady of Peace. Outside the hospice, she offers paid services for the dying and their loved ones, including phone consultations and caregiver respite. She told her story at a TEDxMinneapolis talk last year: a story of personal loss and of the pathway forward, helping others meaning in the bleakest times.

That requires an unblinking confrontation with death, which many people avoid. “By denying death all the way up until the minute it happens, we lose out on the opportunity to mend ourselves and to heal our relationships, to find purpose in our lives and to leave a legacy,” she said in her TED talk. “These are all things that prepare us to die.

Jane Whitlock visits with Jim Foster in his room at Our Lady of Peace.

Death is natural and totally unavoidable, so why are we so afraid to talk about it?”

Whitlock is not afraid. She’s not afraid of death, of silence, of asking questions, of answering them. She has well-honed instincts to read each patient at Our Lady, where she volunteers every other Friday. She gently draws them into conversation, listening to what is said and what is left unsaid.

“You have to be entirely vulnerable with every single person – that Buddhist concept of a soft front. I just walk in and introduce myself and say, ‘I’m a hospice volunteer. Are you interested in a chat? Do you have any worries about this experience? The reason I’m here is because my husband and I have been where you are.’ That usually opens a lot of doors, and people are like, ‘Well, sit right down.’”

Jim Foster, a 72-year-old furniture salesman from River Falls, was sitting on the edge of his bed one August afternoon gazing out the window when Whitlock arrived. He had expected to live longer, he told her. His parents had both reached their 90s.

Sometimes Whitlock plays a patient's favorite music: folk music from their native country, Gregorian chants. Sometimes she learns about the most popular dish they used to cook and helps them share the recipe with loved ones.

"It's gratifying," she said. "I feel like I'm giving useful information that will bring them a sense of peace and will help with their grief. And I really do feel like Rob's spirit informs my work. That's the whole driver."

Jane Whitlock takes careful notes on the patients she visits.

"Mom possessed a creative force that was always with her," her daughter Karen Schoenrock said. "There was always a way to embellish or improve anything."

Her final weeks of life were spent at Our Lady, where she was well cared for. "She appreciated the attention from staff, friends and family," her daughter Laurie Sugiarto said.

The staff's attentiveness put Eunice's children at ease. "Before I left I always checked in with the person on duty to ask questions and update them on my mom's current status – if she was warm or cold, ate and drank well or not," Laurie said. "It was wonderful to be able to do this! The staff were not crazy busy and overworked, like some places. I always feel good about leaving my mom, knowing she was in good hands and well cared for."

The staff artfully blend education with compassion. Laurie added, "The staff have a wonderful balance of listening to you, helping you understand the process and compassionately attending to patients."

Karen agreed, saying, "Everyone was superb! I remember a night nurse who explained things so well. It was such a relief to know mom was being so well cared for."

Eunice enjoyed spending time with her children and close friends in her room and listening to her youngest daughter, Laurie, sing her hymns and read Celtic prayers from J. Philip Newell's book Sounds of the Eternal. She passed away on July 1 – her late husband's 100th birthday.

FREZGI HISKIAS, RN HONORED WITH NURSING AWARD

EMPLOYEE PROFILE

Another chapter in Fregzi Hiskias' remarkable life story has been written, again demonstrating how blessed the African immigrant has been.

Growing up in Eritrea, Hiskias worked as a shepherd, corralling goats, sheep and cows hundreds of miles across the Horn of Africa. He passed the time by playing a bamboo flute, sending haunting melodies into the hot air.

One day in 1977, when Hiskias was 13, he and a friend got stuck in an intense storm while out shepherding. They took cover under a tree, and then a nightmare came to pass: They were struck by lightning. Hiskias fell into a coma for five hours, waking to learn his friend had died.

Hiskias had been spared but was crippled and would rely on a cane for seven years. The shocking event strengthened his resolve – and shaped his outlook on life. “To be here is only God’s intervention,” he said. “I feel like God has a purpose for my life.”

That purpose was discovered through education. Hiskias had a 10th grade education when he immigrated to the U.S. at age 22. He enrolled at St. Paul College, earning an LPN degree so he could help others. He has served patients at Our Lady of Peace for the past 15 years.

His colleagues commend his gentle spirit and unfailing energy. So too is St. Paul College proud to claim him as their own, keeping him involved in an advisory committee and seeking his input as an alumnus.

But the most interesting twist is the latest: Hiskias now teaches at St. Paul College.

“It’s a full-circle moment,” Hiskias said. “I tell the students: ‘Once upon a time, I was sitting there just like you.’”

Raising awareness of hospice work is a mission he takes seriously. “I’m always pushing for more education. There hasn’t been a lot of exposure to death and dying. But dying is a part of life.”

His students are enthralled by his stories: praise for Our Lady of Peace, insights into the hospice field, anecdotes about his immigration. “They seem to be very enthusiastic,” he said.

His passion for hospice extends beyond the classroom. Hiskias seizes every opportunity to inform the public about his field and has offered to share hospice brochures with a number of doctors.

“We want to be a resource to families, to help them understand what we do,” he said. “I brag about Our Lady wherever I go. It’s an awesome place.”

His passion and remarkable skill with patients has garnered attention far beyond the walls of Our Lady. This summer the staff of Mpls.St. Paul Magazine took note, awarding Hiskias one of its coveted Outstanding Nurses Award. More than 300 nurses were considered, he said, and judged by a team of nurses, but only 17 were selected for the award, with Hiskias being the only male.

“I’m thrilled,” he said. “It’s a great honor. I’m happy to win this for Our Lady, to increase our visibility.”

BUTTERFLY RELEASE

Back by popular demand, the Butterfly Release Memorial returned this summer and brought together hundreds of friends and family members on a perfect August afternoon to honor and remember loved ones who were cared for at Our Lady of Peace.

Our thanks to local photographer, Suzanne Navarro, for sharing her gifts with us to document the event.

“We delight in the beauty of the butterfly but rarely admit the changes it has to go through to achieve that beauty.”

Maya Angelou

And yet, Hiskias remains as humble as ever. “I don’t claim to be the best nurse,” he said. “A whole team helped me get here, starting with Joe [Stanislav]. It’s a team effort. I feel rewarded because it’s the teamwork.”

And like his colleagues, who share his commitment to lifelong learning, Hiskias intends to keep growing as a nurse. “I’m still learning,” he said.

Which means friends of Our Lady should stay tuned for the next chapter in this immigrant’s incredible story. It’s sure to be good.

PSYCHOLOGIST GUIDES FAMILIES FACING DEATH

VOLUNTEER PROFILE

Ruth Markowitz

It's been nearly a decade since Ruth Markowitz began volunteering at Our Lady of Peace, and for all she has given, she mainly feels grateful for what the hospice has given her.

It started in 2010 when, 25 years into her private practice, the St. Paul psychologist recognized a hole in her resume. "I needed to learn about death," Markowitz said. She enrolled in an 18-month end-of-life program through the Metta Institute in California and, once complete, sought out a local hospice to gain experience. She chose Our Lady of Peace.

First Markowitz volunteered at the front desk, a helpful entry into the hospice world. At every turn, she was greeted by kind visitors and devoted staff.

Next she began helping with meals, enjoying little exchanges with patients as she delivered their food.

And before long, she shifted to grief work, fusing her ample experience in psychology with her newfound understanding of death. Markowitz's impact was profound.

Over the years, she has led a host of workshops and grief support groups at Our Lady, including one around the holidays, one for parents and one for spouses.

"Ruth is a beautiful blend of skill and empathy," said one support-group participant. "She creates a safe environment for us to bring our broken hearts for comfort and growth. With Ruth as our guide, we are supported on our grief journey."

Most recently, Markowitz led a workshop called "The Art of Being with the Dying." In it, she played a clip from The Today Show featuring Ron Rudolph, whose late wife, Pat, stayed at Our Lady of Peace last year.

Rudolph has attended Markowitz' grief-support group, which has been drawing a large turnout. Some meet for six weeks, others are on a drop-in basis. They are powerful gatherings, Rudolph said.

For the many experts who lack real-world knowledge of hospices, as Markowitz once did, Our Lady is a perfect place to gain experience and work with highly skilled, caring professionals.

"The people are incredibly kind," she said, "the service is very personal and families feel attended to and welcomed."

'I AM INVESTED IN OUR LADY STAYING ALIVE'

Since her first days as a volunteer, Ruth Markowitz has donated to Our Lady of Peace, struck by what a unique place it is.

"I give because I want to be sure that there's a hospice around that's small and intimate and personal and that people have an opportunity to die in space that doesn't feel cold and corporate," she said. "I am invested in Our Lady staying alive. It's a really good place."

Such a good place, she says, that she wrote in her health care directive that she would like to stay at Our Lady. "And I'm Jewish!" she jokes.

Markowitz has made a habit of writing a check for Our Lady at its spring luncheon, an easy reminder to give yearly. She has also sponsored a table, bringing others to the fundraiser and sharing stories about what makes the hospice so special.

MEET KATE WAGNER

Kate Wagner became a chaplain of Our Lady of Peace last year, but her connection to the hospice began before that.

“My spiritual journey of the past few years is very grounded in OLP,” she said.

In 2017, her stepbrother died at Our Lady, and Kate was with him when he died.

“It was a powerful experience,” she said. “I personally experienced the gift of peace that OLP patients and families now tell me about.”

When the chaplain position opened up the following year, she was immediately drawn to it. She had worked as a chaplain at a large and small hospice and recognized the “high-quality hospice care” that sets OLP apart.

“My spiritual growth continues to unfold through my work at OLP,” she said. “I feel very connected to the staff I get to work with. I feel deep respect for all who are called to work in hospice, and I’m honored to be a part of the OLP team.”

Kate shared more via Q&A.

What makes your job rewarding?

I really enjoy the challenge of forming connections with patients and families who are in the midst of tremendous life change. Meeting patients and families where they are in their lives and nurturing trust with them is not always easy, and I try to tread gently and with humility. Fewer and fewer people have the support of church or spiritual community, and that is a reality that every spiritual-care provider in healthcare gets to work with.

When I succeed at gaining trust and opening a channel of communication – regardless of a patient’s cultural or spiritual background – it is very rewarding for me. Building trust so I can support patients toward recognizing and using their own spiritual strengths is work that I am proud of.

What’s the best feedback you have received from a patient?

When I hear from someone that they didn’t expect to get anything from talking to me but they end up feeling supported, validated and encouraged to use their inner resources, I feel affirmed and like I am in the right place at the right time. A patient’s husband once told me: “I didn’t expect we’d have anything to talk about and now you can’t shut me up!”

That was good feedback because I knew our conversation had reminded him of the internal strength he had for dealing with his wife’s impending death.

Why is Our Lady such a special place?

It is grounded in tradition and history. The Dominican Sisters of Hawthorne, NY came to St. Paul in the 1940s and started Our Lady of Good Counsel Home, a free end-of-life care facility to serve the “cancer poor.”

There are quite a few OLP staff who worked with the Dominican Sisters at Our Lady of Good Counsel and who then transitioned to serving patients at OLP.

'A GOOD PLACE TO START'

DONOR PROFILE

Judy and Jim Thomas have lived by Our Lady of Peace Hospice for 45 years. Five years ago they started attending Mass there.

"We very quickly fell in love," Judy said. "The chapel is very 'adoration like.' The priest, the nuns, the staff are peaceful and loving. The patients we ended up meeting are not afraid but so grateful to be there. There is a sense of calm that permeates the building. Yet there is laughter too."

The Thomases recognized something that many overlook: how vital it is to help sustain this special place. "Because this is a free hospice, people don't understand the dire need for funding," she said. "There is always a wish list of improvements for the patients. Gifts can be received in many different forms. The older we get the more we realize the value of giving back. Our Lady of Peace is a good place to start. Every single one of us will die. To die in peace and with dignity is a gift that OLP provides. Funding will help them continue this amazing work."

Donating to OLP felt natural because being a good neighbor is woven into their moral code. It's a principle they lived out decade after decade as they raised their five children and ran Thomas Liquors on the corner of Grand Avenue and Prior Avenue in St. Paul, which has been in the family since 1923. It is currently owned by their son Mike, and his son is soon coming on board to mark the fourth generation.

Jim and Judy Thomas

"We value our neighborhood and our community," Judy said, "and we feel blessed beyond words that we are a small part of the family that is Our Lady of Peace."

WHEN GRIEF CHANGES THE HOLIDAYS

It is a sight that is at once sobering and joyful: evergreen trees flocked with hundreds of silver stars, each star a reminder of a life that has ended but also of person who was loved.

These trees create the centerpiece for the annual Celebration of Life event at Our Lady of Peace. Last December, hundreds of family members and friends gathered to remember their loved ones and reminisce with OLP staff during this special time.

Unique challenges are often present during the holiday season for families that are grieving. "The holidays can act as a painful reminder of your loss," said Bereavement Coordinator Amy Cotter. "Your loved one's absence may be felt more keenly, and the joyful, festive excited tone of the season may be at odds with your mood. Holidays may make you think of times past. These memories can bring both happiness and sadness."

When those feelings surface, Cotter says, it's important to share those memories and to give yourself permission to cry and to laugh, which is a way to honor your own grief. Cotter also points out that being intentional and proactive about holiday plans is important. "Ask yourself which traditions you may want to continue, which you may want to let go of and if there are any new traditions you would like to start. Most important, be kind to yourself and remember that memories made in love can never be taken away."

Our foundation is built on prayer and service to those in need, and I would say that the walls have been prayed into. Many families experience real peace when they arrive here.

How vital is it to address the spiritual dimension of death?

Since we live in a culture where it's easy to forget about or avoid the spiritual dimension of life, it is times of illness and death that tend to force spirituality into our consciousness. Life-threatening illness can demand that the person experiencing it work through issues related to life meaning, hopes and fears, relationships and forgiveness. Having someone to talk to about these issues – especially a neutral party like a chaplain – can really help move someone from fear and denial into a place of acceptance. That's generally my goal, and I am glad to say that I see it happen more often than not in the patients and families I get to serve as chaplain. It's also important to recognize that it's a team effort, and every hospice discipline – nursing, social work, and so on – plays their role in bringing comfort and peace to patients and their families.

How can it help to incorporate spirituality into the dying process?

It can help in various ways. Judith Oberhauser, another OLP chaplain, is very good at creating rituals. She worked with a family that included several school-aged children. While the patient was conscious and able to participate, Judith brought the family around the bed and gave each family member some rose petals. They then took turns placing rose petals on the patient's bed and telling those gathered what they loved about their grandfather. It was very meaningful for everyone present, and I can imagine that the ritual will be something that stays with those children for the rest of their lives. I like to think that Judith helped the next generation feel less fearful about death and better able to integrate death as a normal part of their life.

I also have appreciated the healing power of ritual for many Catholics who have unresolved feelings as death approaches. The sacrament of Anointing of the Sick, once called Last Rites, can bring deep peace to those who receive it. Praying the rosary is a ritual that I saw bring peace to my mom and others in my family and that I now get to share with some patients who pray it. Its meditative quality can make a hard day get a little easier.

What do you say to someone who wants to pray but doesn't really know how?

Some patients I work with never had a prayer life and others chose to set aside what they were raised with for any number of reasons. Sometimes a patient wants to reconnect with a tradition that was important earlier in life. Others may find God or the Divine (or whatever name they call it) in nature, in animals, in the arts, in loving relationships. I try to help patients who don't have a faith tradition identify where they get their spiritual and emotional strength. What got them through hard times in their lives up to now?

What's your go-to prayer?

I follow the patient and family's lead in terms of whether we pray together or not. If prayer is important to them, I ask what they'd like to pray for and then use a prayer from their tradition that we can say together.

I have used the Serenity Prayer with people of all backgrounds who indicate that they are really feeling the tension of losing their physical abilities and their sense of control. It faces that issue of personal control head on: "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change..."

The prayer ends up empowering some patients as it acknowledges the limitations of being a human being. It's so simple and beautiful, and it's a prayer that my grandmother had hanging up in her home when I was a child. It's meaningful to me and seems to be really encourage many people who are in the thick of life-changing illness and uncertainty.

Do you pray for OLP patients?

My way of praying for people in my life is to recognize when a person comes to mind spontaneously, like when I am driving or cooking. I see it as my opportunity to pray for them. I then think of them in their best light and send them love and whatever else they need to flourish spiritually. I do this for patients and family members who have died as well as for the living.

OUR LADY OF PEACE CARE FUND

In the late 1800s Rose Hawthorne, foundress of the Dominican Sisters of Hawthorne, saw indigent cancer patients dying in the streets of New York City, shunned because cancer was feared as contagious and treatment was futile.

Moved by their suffering, Rose took these people into her home and cared for them. She charged nothing for her services. Where care was needed, care was given.

At Our Lady of Peace, this simple but vital mission of the Dominican Sisters to provide gentle, loving end-of-life care at no cost is still firmly in place, but to ensure that it continues we have created the Our Lady of Peace Care Fund. Through this special fund, which accepts major gifts of $2,500 or more, our donors help us reach our goal of closing the daily cost-of-care gap in our 21-bed hospice home.

The cost-of-care gap is the difference between the payment Our Lady of Peace Home receives from a patient's Medicare or private insurance and the daily costs to care for that patient.

For example:

- Cost of care per patient, per day = $1,000
- Medicare reimbursement (approximately) = $200
- Daily cost-of-care gap per patient, per day = $800

Through the generosity of donors, we can fill that gap and guarantee that daily expenses are covered for each patient.

“My dear friend Catherine, was cared for at Our Lady of Peace. I visited her almost daily for the last two weeks of her life. I truly don’t know what she would have done without this place, and I wanted to make sure that it would be here for other people like her. That’s why I became a donor.”

NINTH ANNUAL LUNCHEON SETS FUNDRAISING RECORD

What a year for the Friends of Our Lady Luncheon! A record crowd raised a record $125,000 and, for the record, we couldn't be more grateful.

The spring weather cooperated and produced a gorgeous May day that provided the perfect backdrop for this joyful annual event held at a new venue, Jimmy's Event Center in Vadnais Heights.

The program featured special guest Father Michael Joncas, world-renowned composer of liturgical music, who performed several pieces, including a new composition titled "A Place Called Home." He closed by inviting luncheon guests to join him in singing his beloved hymn "On Eagle's Wings."

Amber Heggstad spoke to the crowd about her personal experience with Our Lady of Peace as the daughter of a patient, and Father Paul Treacy from the Church of the Assumption served as master of ceremonies for the event.

Table Hosts

A special "Thank You!" to our table hosts for making our luncheon a tremendous success!

If you are interested in hosting a table at next year's luncheon, please contact Lisa Sweeney at (651) 789-6826 or lisas@ourladyofpeacemn.org.

A CLEAR-CUT FOCUS

JOE STANISLAV, PRESIDENT & CEO OF OUR LADY OF PEACE

JIM MILLER, CHAIR OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF OUR LADY OF PEACE

Joe Stanislav

Jim Miller

Our Lady of Peace strives to be a leader in end-of-life care. We believe that leadership often entails educating the public about our approach to end-of-life care. When asked what moral guidelines Our Lady of Peace follows in its care for the dying, we tell people that as a Catholic healthcare ministry, we follow the Ethical and Religious Directives for Catholic Health Care Services developed and approved by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. Directives 56 through 60 are especially pertinent to patients and families who seek to understand and follow Church teaching at end of life:

56. A person has a moral obligation to use ordinary or proportionate means of preserving his or her life. Proportionate means are those that in the judgment of the patient offer a reasonable hope of benefit and do not entail an excessive burden or impose excessive expense on the family or the community.

57. A person may forgo extraordinary or disproportionate means of preserving life. Disproportionate means are those that in the patient's judgment do not offer a reasonable hope of benefit or entail an excessive burden, or impose excessive expense on the family or the community.

58. In principle, there is an obligation to provide patients with food and water, including medically assisted nutrition and hydration for those who cannot take food orally. This obligation extends to patients in chronic and presumably irreversible conditions (e.g., the "persistent vegetative state") who can reasonably be expected to live indefinitely if given such care. Medically assisted nutrition and hydration become morally optional when they cannot reasonably be expected to prolong life or when they would be "excessively burdensome for the patient or [would] cause significant physical discomfort, for example resulting in complications in the use of the means employed." For instance, as a patient draws close to inevitable death from an underlying progressive and fatal condition, certain measures to provide nutrition and hydration may become excessively burdensome and therefore not obligatory in light of their very limited ability to prolong life or provide comfort.

59. The free and informed judgment made by a competent adult patient concerning the use or withdrawal of life-sustaining procedures should be respected and normally complied with, unless it is contrary to Catholic moral teaching.

60. Euthanasia is an action or omission that of itself or by intention causes death in order to alleviate suffering. Catholic health care institutions may never condone or participate in euthanasia or assisted suicide in any way. Dying patients who request euthanasia should receive loving care, psychological and a spiritual support, and appropriate remedies for pain and other symptoms so that they can live with dignity until the time of natural death.

In practice, we encourage applicants to complete Living Wills or other forms of Advance Directives that describe their care expectations when they are no longer able to articulate them.

Before admitting them, we discuss their care expectations with them or their designees to decide if we can meet their expectations or not. It is important for applicants to know that by accepting our services, they desire no further curative treatment of their illnesses and understand that the care they can expect to receive from us aims to alleviate their pain and other symptoms so that they may spend their final days in peace.

We hope that the Directives and pre-admission conversations eliminate misunderstandings later about what guides our care. Simply stated, our unwavering mission is to gently comfort and care for those most in need near the end of their lives.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED FOR ONGOING EDUCATION

The Minnesota Department of Health recently awarded scholarships to advance the education of medical professionals, and two employees from Our Lady of Peace Hospice were selected. Combined, they will receive $43,000 in scholarships.

Courtney Cross, a part-time CNA at Our Lady, is one of the scholarship recipients. She has worked at Our Lady for nearly four years and just graduated from Rasmussen College with an RN.

“I’m excited to be able to further my education and not necessarily have to worry about costs,” she said.

Cross will soon be entering the MSN program at Saint Catherine University.

Being at Our Lady, where she is surrounded by lifelong learners, has inspired her. It also means her colleagues are happy to accommodate her schedule needs in order to fit in new courses. “They are very helpful and flexible with scheduling, allowing me to go back to school.”

ANNUAL REPORT

We are pleased to present the following snapshot of the financial well-being of Our Lady of Peace Home. 2019 was a remarkable year thanks to the generosity of our donors. Our operations were supported by unprecedented numbers of donors and estate gifts. These gifts will go a long way toward ensuring that we will continue to provide free end-of-life care to those in need for years to come. Continued support from our benefactors will be crucial for maintaining our unique ministry.

PUPS OF OUR LADY

*Sometimes the best therapy, for patients, family and OLP
staff, arrives on four paws.
Bubba, Chuck and Josie.)*

OUR LADY of PEACE COMMUNITY HOSPICE & HOME HEALTH wherever home may be

COMMUNITY HOSPICE

Our Lady of Peace Community Hospice comes to you.

Our hospice care team makes our patients' final days, weeks, or months as peaceful and comfortable as possible. We serve those in need who are living at home, in senior communities, or long-term care facilities.

OUR HOME HEALTH SERVICES INCLUDE:

- Skilled nursing (RN)
- Psychosocial support
- Massage therapy
- Music therapy
- Spiritual care
- Bereavement support

HOME HEALTH

Here for you when you need extra assistance at home.

Recovering from an injury, illness, or surgery can present serious challenges at home. When you or your loved one requires extra assistance, we are here for you.

OUR HOME HEALTH SERVICES INCLUDE:

- Skilled nursing (RN)
- Medication management
- Physical therapy
- Occupational therapy
- Speech therapy
- Social work (MSW)
- Wound care
- Home health aide
- Post-surgical care
- Rehab
- Palliative care
